NEWNAN - The Georgia Bureau of Investigation arrested a veteran Newnan Police officer Tuesday on child molestation charges.

The investigation by the GBI's Columbus Regional Office determined 34-year-old Todd Lengsfeld allegedly had a sexual relationship with a 15-year-old female.

The Newnan Police Department fired the 11-year veteran officer Tuesday for what it calls "internal policy violations."

The case began on Monday, July 27, when Newnan Police investigators launched an internal investigation into the off-duty activities of Lengsfeld.

A news release from Newnan Police says the investigation "centered on the Officer's inappropriate contact with a female juvenile by use of a cell phone issued to him for official business by

The investigation determined Lengsfeld violated several policies of the Newnan Police Department and the city of Newnan and may have also broken the law.

The following day, Newnan Police Chief Douglas Meadows asked the GBI to conduct an investigation of possible criminal activity. At that time, Lengsfeld was placed on paid administrative leave, pending the outcome of the internal investigation and criminal investigation.
